

Stephen Robertson

Clerihews

Five politicians...

Margaret Thatcher
observed that her natural son and heir
was Tony Blair.

Nigel Farrage
has a mouth like a garage—he opens it ever so wide and you can see all the junk inside.

grey John Major
surely had a wager
that he could without worry take the hottest Currie.

Gordon Brown
replaced his frown
with a one-sided smile
that was off by a mile.

Tony Blair
floated on air
when Maggie's encomium
came to be known to 'im.

... and one poet

Thomas Stearns Eliot
wrote poetry well, but was no great shakes
in the marriage stakes.